A Slander Reinted.

Judge W. H. Barnes in his presentation address at the ceremonies in Tucsor on Tuesday, uttered the following tearless, upright and truthful words regarding the Apache Indians. They should be widely published for they meet and refute a base slander upon the people of Ari-

In passing, let me meet a slander which has gone out against this people. Would to God I had voice to reach wherever taids had been provoked by wrongs upon them by the renegade whites. There is not the snadow of a fact to found it upon. It has been my lot to have had a wide observation of crimes and the crimina classes, and I say emphatically, that there is no portion of the United States where there is less of crime, where person and property are safer and where there are fewer professional criminals than in Ari-Of the crimes committed here, a very large per cent are by non-residents; outraws and escapes from other jurisdic tions. In one term of Court, of over twenty indicted, not one has been in the territory ninety days before arrest. It this city of eight or ten thousand people, for half the year everybody sleeps out doors and locks are rarely turned, yet we have no burglaries, few, very few, larcenies, sneak thieres, pick-pockets and embezziement and those crimes which indicate great turpitude and a hab-it of crime, are care. Most of the crimes are those which arise from violent quarrels or anger, and waile often serious indicate far less of crimmal instinct and moral obliquity than those mentioned. The records of the Courts will bear this Now here do you find more of intelligence, more respect for law and a better citizenship, than here. The feeling for, and the treatment of the Indians, is just. With the Pagagoes, Pimas and other friendly Indians, the whites have ever lived in the most pleasant and peaceful relations. No white man in the mountains who would not share his canteen or his 'grub' with any of them. They have been the good samaritans of the desert, and many a thirsty and hungry wanderer, owes his life to their kindly care. No citizen of Arizona who would not come quickly to defend them from any wrong. They have all felt the heavy hand of these Apache marauders, the common enemy of mankind; and against them and them alone, the feeling of hostility exists. The great question, what shall be done with these Indians, is yet to be answered. If they are to remain on the reservation, they should be dis armed and unhorsed. An armed camp of savage Apaches, is a constant menac-After fair warning, if found off the reser vation, they should be treated as in the overt act of murder. Better than all would be to remove and scatter these tribes away from their old haunts. I have faith that these problems will be solved and the hopes of Arizona realized.
